

How to Write A Personal Statement

What's the Purpose of a Personal Statement?

A personal statement is your chance to show just how enthusiastic and committed you are as well as what value you can bring to a company or university.

Your personal statement is your opportunity to sway things in your favor when someone is trying to choose between you and another candidate; it's your last chance to impress whoever makes the final decision.

How to Write a Personal Statement

Here is a checklist for the things you should be including in your personal statement:

- Your career aspirations.
- How you became interested in the position you're applying for.
- Provide examples of the related academic or work experience.
- Previous job roles/education you found the most interesting.
- What attracted you to the particular company/university.
- Other academic interests, passions, or hobbies that display good character and personality.

What to Include

How Long Should Your Personal Statement Be?

- The length of a personal statement varies, and it all really comes down to the quality of the company or university you're looking to apply for.
- We would recommend that you keep it below 1000 words, but make sure that you've got everything you need within there which shows off your good character.
- There's no use in cutting corners just to save on word count, especially when we've already established the fact that this personal statement alone could make or break your application.

Common Personal Statement Errors

Along with not lying on your personal statement about things like your personal life or education history you do not want to over-exaggerate who you are and what you're interested in as they'll easily see through the lies.

Along with this, you should not:

- Submit a personal statement that is too long or too short.
- Submit a personal statement that included negative or unimportant information.
- Submit a personal statement that does not have a good structure to it.

Additional Personal Statement Tips

TIPS

- Start things strongly to grab the attention of the reader
- Link outside interests and passions to the position you're applying for
- Be as honest as you can, but don't be negative
- Don't attempt to sound too clever
- Express a passion for your line of work
- Have an outside eye help proofread it
- Don't use material you used in your CV/Resume
