Scientific Inquiry Cycle: Review

Science helps communities solve problems by applying knowledge and creating things that "solve" real-world issues such as water quality or waste management using science. Ideas or proposed solutions can have a positive impact on understanding the problem fully, including its causes and effects, as the first step in finding an effective resolution.

Designing solutions requires considering various constraints, such as budget, time, and safety concerns. Constraints represent some part of a problem that limits the options available, and it is important to weigh these trade-offs carefully. For example, creating materials for a house that are affordable to build and easy to use, cannot influence the effectiveness of the solution.

After identifying a solution, determining how it works, what constraints affected it, and any compromises that have already been or should be made on the way. Communication, using digital media, and reflecting on the results of the scientific solution are important steps. This process can help identify future needs, locally encourage responsible decision-making, and build community trust.

3. Which is an example of a trade-off?
