Levintova, Alison Kathryn Staudinger, 2018-07-12 A collection of studies examining the role of gender in teaching and learning in the traditionally male dominated field of political science Gender in the Political Science Classroom looks at the roles gender plays in teaching and learning in the traditionally male dominated field of political science The contributors to this collection bring a new perspective to investigations of gender issues in the political behavior literature and feminist pedagogy by uniting them with the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning SoTL The volume offers a balance between the theoretical and the practical and includes discussions of issues such as curriculum class participation service learning doctoral dissertations and professional placements The contributors reveal the discipline of political science as a source of continuing gender based inequities but also as a potential site for transformative pedagogy and partnerships that are mindful of gender While the contributors focus on the discipline of political science their findings about gender in higher education are relevant to SoTL practitioners other social science disciplines and the academy at large A bold and compelling collection that asks important questions about the ways in which the teaching of Political Science reproduces gender inequities Aeron Haynie The Gender Question In Education Ann Diller, 2018-10-08 In this innovative book four prominent philosophers of education introduce readers to the central debates about the role of gender in educational practice policymaking and theory More a record of a continuing conversation than a statement of a fixed point of view The Gender Question in Education enables students and practicing teachers to think through to their own conclusions and to add their own voices to the conversation Throughout the authors emphasize the value of a gender sensitive perspective on educational issues and the relevance of an ethics of care for educational practice Among the topics discussed are feminist pedagogy gender freedom in public education androgyny sex education multiculturalism the inclusive curriculum and the educational significance of an ethics of care The multiauthor dialogic structure of this book provides unusual breadth and cohesiveness as well as a forum for the exchange of ideas making it both an ideal introduction to gender analysis in education and a model for more advanced students of gender issues Gender and the Politics of the Curriculum Sheila Riddell, 2012 This book uses detailed case studies of two secondary schools to examine the relationship between curriculum choice and gender identity among fourteen year old pupils making their first choices about what subjects to pursue at exam level It reveals a two way process Pupils decisions on what subject to take are influenced by how they perceive themselves in gender terms and the curriculum once chosen reinforces their sense of gender divisions The author looks at the influences on pupils at this stage in their lives from peers family and the labour market as well as from teachers She argues that the belief in freedom of choice and school neutrality espoused by many teachers can become an important factor in the reproduction of gender divisions and that unless the introduction of the national curriculum is accompanied by systematic efforts to eradicate sexism from the hidden curriculum it will fail in its aim of creating greater equality of educational opportunity among the sexes

School Reform, Corporate Style Dorothy Shipps,2006 Like

other big city school systems Chicago's has been repeatedly reformed over the last century Yet its schools have fallen far short of citizens expectations and left a gap between the performances of white and minority students Many blame the educational establishment for resisting change Other critics argue that reform occurs too often still others claim it comes not often enough Dorothy Shipps reappraises the tumultuous history of educational progress in Chicago revealing that the persistent lack of improvement is due not to the extent but rather the type of reform Throughout the twentieth century managerial reorganizations initiated by the business community repeatedly altered the governance structure of schools as well as the relationships of teachers to children and parents but brought little improvement while other more promising reform models were either resisted or crowded out Shipps chronicles how Chicago's corporate actors led abetted or restrained nearly every attempt to transform the city's school system then asks whether schools might be better reformed by others To show why city schools have failed urban children so badly she traces Chicago's reform history over four political eras revealing how corporate power was instrumental in designing and revamping the system Her narrative encompasses the formative era of 1880-1930 when teachers unions moderated business plans previously unexplored business activism from 1930 to 1980 when civil rights dominated school reform and the decentralization of the 1980s She also covers the uneasy cooperation among business associations in the 1990s to install the mayor as head of the school system a governing regime now challenged by privatization advocates Business people may be too wedded to a stunted view of educators to forge a productive partnership for change Unionized teachers bridle at the second class status accorded them by managers If reform is to reach deeply into classrooms Shipps concludes it might well require a new coalition of teachers unions and parents to create a fresh agenda that supersedes corporate interests This study clearly shows that in Chicago as elsewhere urban schooling is intertwined with politics and power By reviewing more than a century of corporate efforts to make education work Shipps makes a strong case that it's high time to look elsewhere perhaps to educators themselves for new leadership

Gender and Sexuality Diversity in a Culture of Limitation Tania Ferfolja, Jacqueline Ullman, 2020-05-10 Gender and Sexuality Diversity in a Culture of Limitation provides an outstanding and insightful critique of the ways that contemporary education is impacted by a range of political social and cultural influences that inform the approaches that schools take in relation to gender and sexuality diversity By applying feminist poststructural and Foucauldian frameworks the book examines the ongoing impact of broader socio-cultural discourse on the lives of gender and sexuality diverse students and teachers Beginning with an overview of the impact of how a culture of limitation is realised in Australia the focus moves beyond this context to examine state and federal policies from comparable societies in countries including the USA and the UK and their effect on the production of knowledges and what's permissible to include in educational curriculum This research driven book thus provides a comparative international overview of the current state of gender and sexuality diversity in schools and convincingly demonstrates that despite some empowerment of gender and sexuality diverse individuals silencing and marginalization remain powerful forces This book will be of great interest to graduate and postgraduate students academics professionals and policy makers interested in the field of gender and sexuality in education It is essential reading for those involved in pre service and in service teacher education diversity education the sociology of education as well as education more generally

Gender, Race, and the Politics of Role Modelling Wayne Martino,Goli Rezai-Rashti,2012-03-12 This book provides an illuminating account of teachers own reflections on their experiences of teaching in urban schools It was conceived as a direct response to policy related and media generated concerns about male teacher shortage and offers a critique of the call for more male role models in elementary schools to address important issues regarding gender race and the politics of representation By including the perspectives of minority teachers and students and by drawing on feminist queer and anti racist frameworks this book rejects the familiar tendency to resort to role modelling as a basis for explaining or addressing boys disaffection with schooling Indeed the authors argue on the basis of their research in urban schools in Canada and Australia that educational policy concerned with male teacher shortage and the plight of disadvantaged minority boys would benefit from engaging with analytic perspectives and empirical literature that takes readers beyond hegemonic discourses of role modelling A compelling case is presented for the need to disarticulate discourses about role modelling from a politics of representation that is committed to addressing the reality of the impact of racial and structural inequalities on both minority teachers and students participation in the education system The book also provides insight into the persistence of gender inequality as it relates to the status of elementary school teaching as women s work
