

Econometric Methods

What is Econometrics?

Fundamental of economic measurement. It is a set of research tools employed in various disciplines.

In economics, we express our ideas about relationships between economic variables using the mathematical concept of a function. For example, to express a relationship between income and consumption, i.e.

$$\text{CONSUMPTION} = f(\text{INCOME})$$

Econometrics is about how we can use theory and data from economics, business, and the social sciences, along with tools from statistics, to predict outcomes, answer "how much" type questions, and test hypotheses

The Econometric Model

In Econometric model the economic relations are not exact. While studying a data, we recognize that some of it is a systematic part and a random and a unpredictable component 'u' (which is called Random error)

For Ex:

The demand for an individual commodity say, the Honda Accord might be expressed as

$$Q_d = f(P, P_s, P_c, INC)$$

which says that the quantity of Honda Accords demanded, Q_d , is a function $f(P, P_s, P_c, INC)$ of the price of Honda Accords P , the price of cars that are substitutes P_s , the price of items that are complements P_c (like gasoline), and the level of income INC .

Hence the econometric model for the representation of Honda Accords is

$$Q_d = f(P, P_s, P_c, INC) + u$$

The random error e accounts for the many factors that affect sales that we have omitted from this simple model, and it also reflects the intrinsic uncertainty in economic activity.

To complete the economic model, we have to form the algebraic relationship among our economic variables.

$$f(P, P_s, P_c, INC) = \beta_1 + \beta_2 P + \beta_3 P_s + \beta_4 P_c + \beta_5 INC + u$$

Here, $\beta_1, \beta_2, \beta_3, \beta_4, \beta_5$ are unknown coefficient parameters which will be estimated using economic data and economic technique.
