Women of Feudal Japan Layla Gupta, The role of women in the Samurai culture of feudal Japan is often overshadowed by their male counterparts However women played a significant part in the preservation and continuation of the samurai tradition While most people associate the samurai with men wielding swords and adhering to the Bushido code women within samurai families were expected to uphold their own set of values and responsibilities These women were more than mere caregivers or household managers many of them were skilled in martial arts served as warriors in battle and played vital roles in defending their families and clans At the heart of the samurai ethos was the Bushido code which outlined the virtues of loyalty honor courage and self discipline While this code was primarily designed for men its influence permeated into the lives of samurai women as well Samurai women were expected to uphold these principles in their own way often by managing the family estate educating children in the ways of honor and maintaining the moral and physical well being of their households In a time of constant war and upheaval their roles were vital in sustaining the family's legacy and honor One of the most prominent ways in which women embodied the values of Bushido was through the concept of the onna bugeisha or female warrior These women were skilled in martial arts particularly the use of the naginata a pole weapon and the katana sword They were trained to fight alongside men in battle defending their homes and family members during times of conflict While the idea of a female warrior may seem unusual in most cultures it was relatively common in feudal Japan where the constant threat of war meant that even women had to be prepared to fight for their survival
