Europe: One Continent, Different Worlds De Beer, 2013-03-13 On the threshold of a new century the organisers of the European Population Conference 1999 EPC99 in The Hague decided not only to highlight the population trends that Europe is facing today but also the changes in the 21 st century that are set to shape the future of Europe They decided to focus on comparative issues both in time and in space In order to trace the degree of homogeneity and heterogeneity of European populations over time converging and diverging population trends that are specific to contemporary and future Europe need to be explored This is reflected in EPC99 s motto European Populations on the threshold of the new millennium unity in diversity Future demographic developments will be caused by specific economic social and cultural conditions in Europe and will in turn have a major influence on future economic and social conditions To the extent that demographic trends differ across countries separate countries may face different social and economic problems As demographic trends tend to have long lasting effects it is important to assess the possible consequences of future demographic developments at an early stage On the occasion of EPC99 two of the organisers Statistics Netherlands SN and the Netherlands Interdisciplinary Demographic Institute NIDI decided to produce a set of two population scenarios showing the possible impact of converging and diverging population trends in the next century

Memory and Representation in Contemporary Europe Siobhan Kattago, 2012 Through reflecting on the legacy of totalitarianism and the revolutions of 1989 it becomes clear that the issue is less of whether one should remember but rather how to internalize the various lessons of the past for the future of Europe Memory and Representation in Contemporary Europe thus offers the reader occasions upon which to take stock of different but overlapping contours of past and present in contemporary Europe
