

Economic Models

Building an economic model often follows these steps:

- 1. Decide on the assumptions to use in developing the model.
- 2. Formulate a testable hypothesis.
- 3. Use economic data to test the hypothesis.
- 4. Revise the model if it fails to explain the economic data well.

Boland, 1991 Model building has been the backbone of modern economic theory over the last 25 years and the major methodological task for each model builder has been to establish the testability of each model developed Too often though seemingly innocent modelling assumptions can make a model virtually impossible to test even under ideal conditions yet few economic theorists have examined the methodological requirements and problems of assuring testability in economics Lawrence Boland considers how economists have applied Popper's views on the need for error detection and testability theories in science The methodological debates these theories have inspired are related to wider debates on empiricism and the truth status of models in the natural and social sciences He concludes by arguing that the practice of model building in economics reflects the methodological prescriptions of Samuelson more than the falsification theory usually attributed to Popper The Methodology of Economic Model Building (Routledge Revivals) Lawrence A. Model Building in Economics Lawrence A. Boland, 2014-09-15 Concern about the role and the limits of modeling has heightened after repeated questions were raised regarding the dependability and suitability of the models that were used in the run up to the 2008 financial crash In this book Lawrence Boland provides an overview of the practices of and the problems faced by model builders to explain the nature of models the modeling process and the possibility for and nature of their testing In a reflective manner the author raises serious questions about the assumptions and judgments that model builders make in constructing models In making his case he examines the traditional microeconomics macroeconomics separation with regard to how theoretical models are built and used and how they interact paying particular attention to the use of equilibrium concepts in macroeconomic models and game theory and to the challenges involved in building empirical models testing models and using models to test theoretical explanations
