SheMurenga: The Zimbabwean Women's Movement 1995-2000 Shereen Essof, 2013-01-16 This book demonstrates the place of women's movements during a defining period of contemporary Zimbabwe. The government of Robert Mugabe may have been as firmly in power in 2000 as it was in 1995 but the intervening years saw severe economic crisis, mass strikes and protests, the start of land occupations, intervention in the war in the DRC and the rise of the opposition Movement for Democratic Change. Shereen Essof shows how Zimbabwean women crafted responses to these and other events and aimed for a feminist agenda that would prioritise the interests of the rural and urban poor. Rejecting both the strictures of patriarchy and the orthodoxies of established feminism, she demands that Zimbabwean women be heard in their own voices and in their own contexts. In doing so, she writes a book that combines scholarly integrity with a wild, joyous cry for liberation.

Civil Society and the State in Africa John Willis Harbeson, Donald S. Rothchild, Naomi Chazan, 1994 This text examines the potential value of the concept of civil society for enhancing the current understanding of state-society relations in Africa. The authors review the meanings of civil society in political philosophy as well as alternative approaches to employing the concept in African settings. Considering both the patterns of emerging civil society in Africa and issues relating to its further development, they give particular emphasis to the cases of Côte d'Ivoire, Ghana, Kenya, Nigeria, Sudan, Tanzania, Uganda, and Zaire.

Ghana Under PNDC Rule Emmanuel Gyimah-Boadi, 1993 Ghana Codesria, 1998 Appendix 1 Profile of political parties 1946-1994 2 Government Ghana 1957-1994 3 A chronology of major political events since 31 December 1981 4 Other forms of direct foreign assistance The Palgrave Handbook of Gender and Citizenship Birte Siim, Pauline Stoltz, 2024-05-31 Chapter 12 is available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License via link springer.com Background Paper on Gender Issues in Ghana Sally Baden, 1994 IMF - World Bank and Labor's Burdens in Africa Kwamina Panford, 2001-08-30 Globalization, the return to a multi-party system of government, and the policies advocated by the IMF and the World Bank have led to near-revolutionary labor relations in Ghana. As Panford shows, these new social and economic forces have unleashed new and even contradictory labor policies and practices which are having profound social, political, and economic consequences. Panford examines how the Ghana Constitution of 1992 led for the first time to new workers' rights, including the right to affiliate with any local, national, or international union. In response to globalization and policies advocated by the IMF and the World Bank, the Ghana government sought to resist worker demands for improved working and living conditions. The situation was worsened by the privatization of state-owned businesses and severe cuts in public employment. In this environment of tense labor relations, government hostility, and weak employment, Panford traces the ways workers are revitalizing unions and developing new sources of jobs and finances. These include relatively aggressive, systematic organization of women, senior staff, and the informal agricultural sector. One of the most important initiatives of the unions is the creation of a workers' trust to establish and finance worker-owned enterprises.

The evidence presented by Panford indicates the failure of IMF and World Bank policies and he calls for new and viable policy alternatives with emphasis on enhancing Ghana's global competitiveness and meeting genuine development needs. A thoughtful analysis that will be of interest to scholars and researchers involved with development and international economics, labor relations in the developing world and the increased involvement of international financial institutions.

Jerry John Rawlings Felix Kumah-Abiwu, Sabella Ogbobode Abidde, 2022-11-25 This edited volume examines the leadership and legacy of Ghana's Jerry John Rawlings within the broader context of Africa's leadership and democratic governance. The central purpose of the book is threefold. First it examines the role and place of good and effective political leadership in the development of Africa. Second it situates Jerry Rawlings' political style and legacy in the annals of democratic governance in post-independence Africa. Finally the book adds to the knowledge and understanding of former President Rawlings as one of Africa's preeminent and transformational political leaders. Taking an interdisciplinary and Pan-African approach this volume will be of great interest to scholars, policymakers and students of African politics, African studies, governance, political leadership, democracy, development studies and political economy. Democratization in the

South Robin Luckham, 1996 List of tables and figures The New Institutional Economics and Third World Development John Harriss, Janet Hunter, Colin Lewis, 1995-12-14 Contributors to this volume address the significance of new institutional economics to third world development. It includes articles from Douglas North, political scientist Robert Bates and John Teye Codesria Bulletin, 1999 Politics in Ghana, 1982-1992 Mike Oquaye, 2004 Big Men, Small Boys and Politics in Ghana Paul Nugent, 1995 Drawing on research which focuses on different sectors of the body politic: the labour movement, the peasantry, professional associations, the student movement, the churches and the military, this book provides a much needed synthesis. Dr Nugent gives an in-depth analysis of the 1992 elections including information based on personal fieldwork and interviews undertaken in the Volta Region. His analysis is situated within the wider context of Africanist historical and political research while doing justice to the nuances and complexities of Ghanaian political life. African Journal of Political Science, 2000 Bulletin of the Ghana Geographical Association Ghana Geographical Association, 2001

Understanding "development" Interventions in Northern Ghana Karl Quaye Botchway, 2004 Dissatisfied with the persistence in understanding development as that which is self-evident and needed by all poor societies, no matter their peculiar needs, circumstances and history, Botchway, African American studies, City U of New York, College of Technology, examines the latest attempt at engineering development in Ghana's Northern Region Rural Integrated Program. He investigates what such so-called development does in practice by probing the constitution of its objects and subjects, their relationships and their intended and unintended effects in explaining social change. The study is revised from his doctoral dissertation in political and social science at the New School for Social Research, New York. Some of the chapters have been published as separate articles. The text is double-spaced. Annotation 2004 Book News Inc, Portland, OR, booknews.com
