

THE ANEMOGRAPH

By JACK LEWERKE

IT [JAZZ] will be an indefeasible step toward appreciation and tolerance between peoples." These words by Fran Kelly, co-owner of Fran-Tone Record Company, expressed the theme of the recent "Jazz" Concert at the University of California at Los Angeles. The concert, given on the anniversary of the death of our late president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, was sponsored by the Carver Club of UCLA (named after the famous scientist, Dr. George Washington Carver). The theme and ideals set forth in the planning of the concert were admirable, since jazz is a form of expression which knows neither race nor creed, but due to poor direction the concert dragged into a three hour marathon that left the audience cold.

A line-up of musical stars that should have brought down the house only received mild applause even under the urging of emcee Herb Jeffries who, by the way, tried hard but just couldn't cover up for the unnecessary long waits between sets, unexpected changes of personnel and incompetent stage direction. Such greats as Lester Young, Benny Carter, Ray Bauduc, Charlie Parker, Lucky Thompson, Red Callender, Dodo Marmarosa, Kay Starr, Bumps Myers and The King Cole Trio were present. Also at the campus clambake were a couple of bright newcomers who brought much comment: Joe Graves on trumpet and Arvin Garrison on guitar. Both will bear watching.

history of jazz and do justice to all styles. While one might have a preference for New Orleans music, another might lean toward Chicago style. A jazz lecturer or critic does so much arguing on one point and another that it may tend to make him a fanatic on one certain style. Ross Russell, proprietor of the Tempo Music Shop in Hollywood and partner in Dial Record Company (Dynamo A and B, Dizzie Gillespie) has set out to cover the development of jazz music from Africa to be-bop, in eight lectures. At Russell's second lecture, which was on New Orleans, he proved four things: first, there is no doubt he knows what he is talking about; second, the acoustics could have been better; third, Russell's record collection is both varied and extensive; fourth, he has a tendency to mumble, a setback for a lecturer and a great disadvantage for an audience. All in all, the full eight lectures should prove interesting and enlightening.
