European Union And The Developing Countries The Cotonou Agreement

Olufemi Babarinde, Gerrit Faber

European Union And The Developing Countries The Cotonou Agreement:

The European Union and the Developing Countries Olufemi Babarinde, Gerrit Faber, 2005-02-01 The relationships between the European Union and developing countries in Africa the Caribbean and the Pacific or ACP countries have been called a model for North South development cooperation The Lom Conventions were the embodiment of this model After 25 years the European Union and the ACP group signed a new partnership agreement the Cotonou Agreement Given the disappointing results of the former conventions this book investigates the innovations in the EU ACP relationship Authors from different backgrounds including law political science and economics analyze the forces that gave rise to the new agreement as well as the negotiating process of the new agreement and the negotiations that are taking place to produce the planned Economic Partnership Agreements EPA that are to replace the existing non reciprocal trade preferences that are incompatible with WTO law The potential benefits of EPAs are discussed as is the alternative in the shape of an improved and general preferential system The amended mechanism for aid delivery the increased stress on political dialogue between the partners and the introduction of more civil society participation in the cooperation are extensively analyzed and discussed The effects of the introduction of the Euro and the effect of the planned stimuli on Direct Foreign Investment in ACP economies make this volume very complete in coverage of the ACP EU relations Its relevance extends far beyond the ACP EU relationship as it shows and discusses particular solutions for problems that occur in North South relations in general

Trade, Poverty and The Environment Adrian Flint, 2008-04-01 In 2000 the European Union and its 78 African Caribbean Pacific partners signed the Cotonou Agreement heralding a new era in developmental politics This comprehensive book draws attention to the limitations in the EU s approach to implementing pro poor environmentally sustainable development amongst its African Caribbean Pacific partners

The Cotonou Agreement Commonwealth Secretariat. Economic Affairs Division, 2004 The ACP EU Partnership agreement commonly referred to as the Cotonou Agreement brings together over 100 countries in an integrated trade development assistance and political co operation relationship The agreement represents one of the most comprehensive partnership agreement in the world concluded between groups of developing countries on the one hand and developed countries on the other The agreement consists of a basic framework of 100 articles supplemented by Annexes Protocols annexes to protocols single and joint declarations integral to the legal text This wealth of information makes the agreement both complex and difficult to follow It is this complexity which has given rise to the production of this User s Guide to the Cotonou Agreement By way of a simple question and answer format the guide simplifies the agreement making it more accessible to end users who include amongst others policy makers the private sector and other stakeholders thereby making greater use of resources and enhancing the opportunities available under the agreement

Implications of the Cotonou Agreement for sustainable development in the ACP Countries and beyond, 2004 As the end of Lom IV came into sight the European Commission produced a series of documents reviewing the results which were modest 2

These reports emphasized the need for a new agreement that would be more focussed on trade and more readily compatible with the requirements of the trade regime that had been revitalized in 1994 by conclusion of the Uruguay Round UR and the creation of the World Trade Organization. Indeed the Commission the most important executive body of the EU is technically but the Commission of the European Community. In light of this confusion it has become accepted practice to refer to the European Union without making any distinctions and to identify the Commission as the European Commission. In practice the contribution of foreign direct investment to the sustainable development objectives of a country will depend more on the specific characteristics of that investment the performance of investors as economic citizens and the capabilities of host country governance than on the in These texts may be revised reviewed and or amended by the Council of Ministers on the basis of a recommendation from the ACP EC Development Finance Cooperation Committee. 8 Implications of the Cotonou Agreement for Sustainable Development in the ACP Countries and Beyond ACP States in Brussels which is not however a creation of the ACP itself but rather an expression of the importance of the In addition to setting the framework for the EPA negotiations the CPA provides for cooperation between the partners in the WTO and in particular in trade related areas. The WTO cooperation is couched in fairly general language but achieved a measure of success in the process leading up to the adoption of the Doha agenda.

The European Union and

Developing Countries Yves Bourdet, Joakim Gullstrand, Karin Olofsdotter, 2007-01-01 The EU is the main trading partner of developing countries and the main provider of development aid. The contributors to this book evaluate critical aspects of EU trade and aid policies in order to ascertain whether and to what extent they help promote growth and accelerate the development of the Third World.

Annual World Bank Conference on Development Economics, 2006

François Bourguignon, Boris Pleskovic, 2006-01-01 The Annual World Bank Conference on Development Economics ABCDE brings together the world's leading scholars and development practitioners for a lively debate on state of the art thinking in development policy and the implications for the global economy. The 17th conference was held in Dakar Senegal on January 27 2005. The theme of the conference was growth and integration which was divided into five topics: growth and integration financial reforms economic development trade and development and investment climate.

European Union Trade

Politics and Development Gerrit Faber, Jan Orbie, 2007-05-07 The Everything But Arms (EBA) regulation of the European Union (EU) has been hailed as a groundbreaking initiative for developing countries. Since 2001 EBA grants almost completely liberalized access to the European market for products from the least developed countries (LDCs). It quickly became the most symbolic European trade initiative towards the Third World since the first Lomé Convention in the 1970s. Given its central position in EU discourse and its continuing relevance for the European and international trade agenda this book attempts to present a thorough analysis of EBA. European Union Trade Politics and Development contains contributions from a diverse range of scholars who collectively present a comprehensive picture of EBA This volume also contains a broader analysis of EU trade politics towards the South focusing on agricultural policy reform Europe s evolving relationship with ACP countries ex colonies from Africa the Caribbean and the Pacific it links EBA with Europe s negotiating position within the World Trade Organization Contributions to this volume also consider the continuing negotiation leverage of EBA within the Doha Development Agenda make comparisons with United States trade policy vis vis the LDCs and focus on the economic effectiveness of EBA in terms of its stated objectives as well as on the institutional skirmishing within the EU

The Cotonou Agreement Boniface Macharia Kinyanjui,2001-06-06 Inhaltsangabe Abstract This masters thesis discusses the recently concluded treaty between the African Caribbean and Pacific ACP countries on the one hand and the European Union EU on the other This Agreement having signed in Cotonou Benin is known as the Cotonou Agreement The Cotonou Agreement is the latest in a series of conventions between the two parties that have their genesis in the late 1950s The primary goal of this work was to find out to what extent if at all the newly signed Agreement is likely to contribute to the economic renaissance of the ACP countries In so doing it traces development of the ACP EU conventions right from their very beginning The performance of the relationship to date is examined with a view to determining whether the lessons learnt therefrom have been incorporated in the new Agreement There is a detailed analysis of the trade and aid provisions of the Cotonou Agreement Apart from the economic provisions other major provisions and developments of the ACP EU Conventions are discussed with a view to providing a wholesome picture Inhaltsverzeichnis Table of Contents Abbreviationsiv Table oftreatiesvi Table ofcasesviii

The Cotonou Treaty Establishing the EU-ACP Partnership Otieno-Odek,2002 The European Union's Role in South Asia Simant Shankar Bharti,2025-05-23 This book delineates the role and evolution of the European Union EU as an instrument of soft power in relation to South Asian countries It explains the EU s development policy towards South Asia and examines its cooperation while attempting to assess the extent to which EU s development policy can be an instrument of soft power In addition to examining the development challenges in South Asian countries and the impact of the EU's development assistance on them this book describes the various theoretical approaches on the concept of development along with the interplay of aid politics in international relations IR. Primarily it assesses how the EU's development policy emerged as a significant instrument of power towards developing countries. This book will be useful to students, scholars and researchers of development studies, political science, sociology, economics, foreign policy, diplomacy, area and regional studies, South Asian studies, EU politics and European integration, international relations and public administration. It will also be an indispensable companion for EU policymakers, NGOs and civil societies, South Asian states policymakers and general readers interested in learning more about development, diplomacy and soft power.

The EU, World Trade Law and the Right to Food Giovanni Gruni, 2018-08-09. In recent years the European Union has developed a comprehensive strategy to conclude free trade agreements which includes not only prominent trade partners such as Canada, the United States and Japan but also numerous developing countries. This book looks at the existing WTO law and at the new EU free trade agreements with the Caribbean and sub-Saharan Africa through the lens of the human right to adequate food. It shows how the clauses on the import and export of food included in recent free trade agreements limit the capacity of these countries to implement food security policies and to respect their human rights obligations. This outcome appears to be at odds with international human rights law and dismissive of existing human rights references in EU founding treaties as well as in treaties between the EU and developing states. Yet the book argues against the conception in human rights literature that there is an inflexible agenda encoded in world trade law which is fundamentally conflictual with non-economic interests. The book puts forward the idea that the European Union is perfectly placed to develop a narrative of globalisation considering other areas of public international law when negotiating trade agreements and argues that the EU does have the competences and influence to uphold a role of international leadership in designing a sustainable global trading system. Will the EU be ambitious enough? A timely contribution to the growing academic literature on the relation between world trade law and international human rights law, this book imagines a central role for the EU in reconciling these two areas of international law.

European Development Cooperation Paul Hoebink, 2010. Annotation. This title can be previewed in Google Books <http://books.google.com/books/vid/ISBN9789089643100>. This title is available in the OAPEN Library <http://www.oapen.org>. How and why have the EU's external policies changed toward developing countries? Julia Heise, 2005-05-21. Essay from the year 2005 in the subject Politics. Topic: European Union. grade 1.0. University of Edinburgh course: The European Union in International Affairs. language: English. abstract: Relations with developing countries are a long established part of the European Union's external affairs and the EU's contributions to international development are not only unsurpassed but have become the standard against which the rest of the world measures itself and is judged. Babarinde 1998: 128-1. For most of the past 40 years the ACP countries have been at the heart of EU development affairs. Yet several factors, mainly caused by the end of the Cold War, contributed to the transformation of the Union's development policy in general. The following paper analyses how and why the EU's external policies have changed towards developing countries thereby focusing on the ACP EU relationship. Section one discusses the evolution of the Union's development policy. The Yaounde and Lomé agreements are examined in the subsequent sections. Section four then analyses the developments that led to the most fundamental transformation of the Union's development policy: the Cotonou Agreement, which will be subject to the last section. The paper concludes by evaluating the transformation of EU development policy in general. 1. The Union's significance as an international actor regarding development policy is, for example, underlined by agreements with the World Bank or the United Nations Development Programme to produce common development strategies (Bretherton and Vogler 1999: 109). In the late 1990s the EC and its Member States accounted for 60 percent of the world aid. Also see European Union 2000 and Grilli 1993.

Corporate Social Responsibility, Human Rights and the Law Olufemi Amao, 2011-05-05. The control of multinational corporations is an area of law that has attracted immense attention both at national and international level. In recognition of the importance of the subject matter, the United Nations Secretary General has appointed a special representative to work in this area. The book discusses the current trend by MNCs to self-regulate by employing voluntary corporate social responsibility (CSR) strategies. Olufemi Amao argues that the CSR concept is insufficient to deal with externalities emanating from MNCs' operations, including human rights violations. Amao maintains that for CSR to be effective, the law must engage with the concept. In particular, he examines how the law can be employed to achieve this goal. While noting that the control of MNCs involves regulation at the international level, it is argued that more emphasis needs to be placed on possibilities at home in States and host States where there are stronger bases for the control of corporations. This book will be useful to academic scholars, students, policy makers in developing countries, UN Agencies, the African Union and its agencies, the European Union and its agencies, and other international policy makers.

The Cotonou Agreement and Its Implications for the Regional Trade Agenda in Eastern and Southern Africa Manuel De la Rocha, 2003. The Treaty of Maastricht and Europe's Development Co-operation Paul Hoebink, 2005. Complementarity, coordination, and coherence are three key concepts of the articles on development cooperation included in the Treaty on European Union (Maastricht 1992). Any evaluation of these concepts as proposed by the combined evaluation units of the European Commission and member states should focus on the increased effectiveness of European development cooperation as a result of the implementation of the three C's in recent years. This exploratory study investigates how these concepts are applied, what definitions are used, and how they are embedded in the international legal context.

Trade Relations Between the EU and Africa Yen Kong Ngangjoh-Hodu, Francis A.S.T. Matambalya, 2009-10-16. Trade liberalisation and openness as linchpins for development have been flagships of conventional economic policy advice to most African countries over the last few decades. Much of the orientation of the focus, however, has been on the impact of international trade on development rather than the requirements that development should inform the shaping of the international trading system so that African countries may be able to benefit from such trade This view has permeated both academic debate and the Economic Partnership Agreement EPA Negotiation between the European Commission and groups of African Caribbean and Pacific ACP States This timely volume advances an alternative set of inter related interdisciplinary perspectives and debates which contribute to overlapping genres and discourses notably how rules of origins may stifle the development dimension of EPAs how special agricultural safeguards may be used in balancing the effects of trade liberalisation on small farm holders in Africa It also discusses the centrality of aid for trade in trade negotiations and mainstreaming development in the EPAs debate to enhance domestic supply side in Africa and the various regional integration processes in the region This book focuses on areas of trade that may inform the development dimension of international trade With this edited volume a team of specialists provide a comprehensive survey of ACP EU trade and Africa trade relation in the global context placing it in its legal economic and political contexts The book innovative approach coupled with a stimulating and accessible writing style allows the reader to engage fully with the content It will be of most value to students scholars and related policymakers of international development and trade economics

Power in North-South Trade Negotiations Peg Murray-Evans,2018-10-10 Advancing a constructivist conceptual approach this book explains the surprising outcome of the Economic Partnership Agreements EPAs between the European Union and developing countries in Africa the Caribbean and the Pacific the ACP countries Despite the EU s huge market power it had limited success with the EPAs an outcome that confounds materialist narratives equating trade power with market size Why was the EU unable to fully realise its prospectus for trade and regulatory liberalisation through the EPA negotiations Emphasising the role of social legitimacy in asymmetrical North South trade negotiations Murray Evans sets the EPAs within the broader context of an institutionally complex global trade regime and stresses the agency of both weak and strong actors in contesting trade rules and practices across multilateral regional and bilateral negotiating settings Empirical chapters approach the EPA process from different institutional angles to explain and map the genesis design promotion and ultimately limited impact of the EU s ambitious prospectus for the EPAs This volume will be particularly relevant to students and scholars of international trade and development and the EU as an international actor as well as those researching international political economy African politics and international trade law
