Gateway District Ma:

Gateway District Shirley Pomeroy, 1997-09 The Gateway District in Massachusetts is composed of seven towns served by the Gateway School System Huntington Russell Montgomery Worthington Middlefield Chester and Blandford Nestled comfortably together along the banks of the Westfield River and its tributaries these seven small towns have worked together for over one hundred and fifty years to build a community This photographic essay chronicles the development of these towns and villages from their earliest days In the beginning many were farming communities sustaining themselves with the earth s bounty With industrialization in the nineteenth century came numerous mills along the river and the seven rural towns were forever changed A look at the people places and events of this period will prove surprising for many and will certainly preserve valuable information about the region s history for generations to come
