Elusive Saviours:

Elusive Saviours Hans Heerings, Ineke Zeldenrust, 1995 Throughout the UNCED process government delegates from the North and the South were unable to agree on clear and binding global environmental regulations In the wake of this stalemate in international politics the international business community projected itself as a problem solver the green alternative Where governments could not agree on a strategy for sustainable development the business community stepped in with its own strategies Transnational corporations have tremendous economic power They are certainly in a position to encourage and promote sustainable development But they are also the source of many local and international environmental problems Are they truly in a position to become the new green guide How good are their plans for sustainable development Is their pervasive economic power an obstacle or a lever for sustainable development Hans Heerings and Ineke Zeldenrust explore these questions in Elusive Saviours comparing the present post UNCED practice of transnational corporations with their promises They conclude that while transnationals have adopted many new environmental measures these fail to promote sustainable development Transnational corporations by the very nature of their internationality are able to evade countries with strict environmental legislation It is clearer than ever that we need internationally binding environmental regulations

Human Rights Standards and the Responsibility of Transnational Corporations Michael K. Addo, 1999-09-01 What is the nature and scope of corporate responsibility with regard to human rights Should companies themselves be responsible for human rights violations involving themselves or their subsidiaries What principles should guide business in countries known to violate human rights Is self regulation sufficient or are corporations best regulated by national or international codes and on what should these codes be based These are some of the many questions which this ground breaking collection of essays seeks to address as it assesses the value of applying human rights standards to transnational corporations The increasing involvement of corporations in the public domain and the steady reduction of governmental involvement in commercial and social undertakings has created a desperate need to rethink the nature and role of the private corporation and its regulation This volume which contains a balanced collection of analyses from all interested sources in the corporate responsibility debate is the result of a three day conference during which government officials corporate executives NGOs and representatives of inter governmental organisations as well as academic researchers came together for the first time to discuss the emerging issues The essays have been arranged under six broad themes policy issues regulation issues of application matters of doctrine globalisation and case studies In addition each section contains the opinion not simply a summary of proceedings of a nominated rapporteur who draws together the strands of each theme and where necessary broadens the analysis to cover important issues which may not have been addressed At the heart of this volume is the attempt to define an effective framework for transnational corporate responsibility through international human rights standards It will be of vital interest to corporate legal advisers human rights practitioners NGOs government law offices and academics as well as to all those concerned with human rights and their place in the modern world

The Saviour Syndrome John Carroll, 2023-04-04 Who do we look up to Christ the Savior is no more In the modern West the life of the most significant figure in the history of the culture is assumed to be obsolete What remains Quite a lot actually In this groundbreaking work acclaimed sociologist John Carroll argues that humans in the Western tradition are by their nature savior seeking What he describes as a savior syndrome impels humans to find someone or some equivalent to show the way to a better life and counter the quintessentially modern ordeal of unbelief Drawing on literature history and a range of popular culture sources from the Sopranos to the Bachelorette he demonstrates how we are constantly investing people around us teachers leaders performers athletes even children with exemplary or transcendent qualities that we look up to and identify with and strike to emulate Jesus himself may be no more but the archetype he founded continues to resonate long after his eclipse

Breaking through the role of the victim Alenka Lena Petric, 2025-04-01 A new age is rising in which humans are beginning to awaken to the reality of their own uniqueness we are the centre of the universe and individuality is the cure for the soul It transforms us allowing us to transcend the illusions of resentment accusation and judgment We are more powerful than we realize Breaking through the role of the victim offers a reminder of our uniqueness and individuality an innovative vision of transformation and spiritual rebirth as it invites the reader to discover their inner strength and value With an emphasis on introspection and self knowledge it shows how to free oneself from the role of victim and become an active creator of one s own life and guides the reader through the process of crafting a brand new glorious personality and living their own heaven right here on Earth Alenka Lena Petric is a professor of Slovenian language and literature and a university graduate in linguistics from the Faculty of Arts in Ljubljana Through many years of experience at the school for teachers she has come to realise that knowledge and learning are yet to be recognised as valuable pursuits by the collective human being who often views them as burdensome These values which significantly influence our comprehension behaviour and perception of the world due to this primitive mindset remain at a low level of awareness impairing effective learning and growth Consequently personal and spiritual growth remains stunted undernourished and neglected In her work Alenka Lena Petric analyses how to realise our full potential joy happiness and contentment we must first address these two primary separations

The Governance of Corporate Groups Janet Dine, 2000-06-05 Starting from a discussion of the theoretical underpinning of the place companies occupy in society this book explores the consequences of adherence to free market contractualist theory including the lack of regulatory control of a sufficiently robust nature Professor Dine comments on the absence of a concept of governance of groups from a comparative perspective and considers the consequences of this absence for the conflict of laws In particular she highlights the tragic consequences of globalization by transnationals including polarization of income and environmental damage and suggests a possible legal framework to prevent future damages

this book focuses on the role of corporations within the trading system and the complex relationships between corporations nation states and international organisations The actions and motives that drive corporations are considered as well as the structure of the international trading system Remedial devices such as Codes of Conduct and Human Rights instruments are assessed for effectiveness The book seeks reasons for what is a growing understanding that international trading regimes are not meeting objectives found in many international agreements including both the international trade agreements themselves WTO GATT TRIPS etc and human rights instruments In particular it is clear that the prevalence and severity of poverty is not being adequately addressed This work sets out to investigate the role played by companies in this failure in the globalisation of trade to realise its aims in particular the failure to achieve the minimum of basic rights the right to food

Greening the North Wolfgang Sachs, Reinhard Loske, Manfred Linz, 1998-04-15 This text presents an analysis and proposals for managing the transition to environmental sustainability in industrial countries The concept of environmental space and its development of indicators for measuring an economy's national and global impact give the text potential political impact
