Educating For Social Work Arguments For Optimism:

Educating for Social Work Peter Ford, Patrick Hayes, 1996 This book concerns the embattled state of social work and the potential role of social work education in confronting attacks upon it Contributions from five British universities analyse the forces underlying recent trends and resources that already exist or might be developed to counter them Part One examines the difficulties facing social work education locating them within a wide social and political context and scrutinising such developments as competency based assessment Part Two analyses four areas where actual possibilities for change are masked by current pessimism the implementation of anti discriminatory curricula the strengthening of partnerships with social work agencies the growing significance of international links and the place of research in social work theory and practice Unexpectedly optimistic conclusions are drawn social work education has neglected some potential strengths whose development could improve the quality of social work practice

Link,1999 In this collection of essays on global social policy and social work authors Chathapuram S Ramanathan and Rosemary J Link anticipate the new CSWE accreditation standards and stress the importance of international content to the effectiveness of social work programs You will find a compelling focus on a global commitment to sustainable human development and the importance of the interaction of social workers globally

American Book Publishing Record ,1997 Communication and Community Alan Brier,Robin Lovelock,1996 The essays brought together here highlight the intrinsic inter connectedness of community and communication These concepts are of considerable contemporary relevance and are reflected across a range of academic disciplines in which they are commonly treated separately The key feature of this collection is that it treats the main themes and their many ramifications together and from a committed interdisciplinary perspective

Social Work in Europe ,2000 Current Statistical Trends in Social Work Education Allen Rubin,1986 Contesting Boundaries in Social Work Education Susan E. Roche,1999 This book takes the discourse of cooperative learning to new territories Susan E Roche Marty Dewees and company take a critically reflective look at educational and global human rights philosophy as well as social work s commitment to social justice In liberatory teaching and learning social work educators engage the mechanisms of privilege power and authority that inhabit the academic world no less than the practice world The authors place social work education within a global framework and develop their postmodern educational philosophy around a set of five liberatory principles. These principles question the hierarchies and status based roles and identities found in social work classrooms and field practica. BSW, MSW and doctoral educators and students will find helpful case examples illustrating the principles at work. In the final section the authors discuss the challenges of liberatory education as well as strategies to address them.

Proceedings of the Annual Meeting - National Education Association of the United States National Education Association of the United States, 1913 The Churchman , 1915 Journal of Social Work Education , 1985 Journal of Education , 1911 The Journal of Education , 1909 Education and Care Away from Home Moira Borland, 1998. This literature review brings together evidence from British research policy and practice regarding how children and young people in public care fare within the education system. The review suggests that many of the barriers to educational progress lie in the social work and education systems and their interaction and argues that increased understanding by professionals of each other's perspectives and active collaboration at all levels is vital. Key topics considered in the review include 1 the characteristics and circumstances of children in care 2 the evidence that they underachieve at school 3 ways in which the care and education systems impact on children's educational experience 4 specialist education and residential schools and 5 collaboration between departments of social work and education including examples of special initiatives or services. The review's final chapter summarizes key points and identifies some of the main factors that may promote or impede progress. Gaps in current knowledge and understanding are also highlighted. Contains approximately 250 references. EV
