Exiles and migrants in Oceania, 1970 American Anthropology in Micronesia Robert C. Kiste, Mac Marshall, 1999-01-01 American Anthropology in Micronesia An Assessment evaluates how anthropological research in the Trust Territory has affected the Micronesian people the U S colonial administration and the discipline of anthropology itself Contributors analyze the interplay between anthropology and history in particular how American colonialism affected anthropologists use of history and examine the research that has been conducted by American anthropologists in specific topical areas of socio cultural anthropology Although concentrating largely on disciplinary concerns the authors consider the connections between work done in the era of applied anthropology and that completed later when anthropology was pursued mainly for its own sake The focus then returns to applied concerns in more recent years and issues pertaining to the relevance of anthropology for the world of practical affairs It will be of essential interest to students and scholars of Pacific Islands studies and the history of anthropology Climate Change, Forced Migration, and International Law Jane McAdam, 2012-02-23 Displacement caused by climate change is an area of growing concern With current rises in sea levels and changes to the global climate it is an issue of fundamental importance to the future of many parts of the world This book critically examines whether States have obligations to protect people displaced by climate change under international refugee law international human rights law and the international law on statelessness Drawing on field work undertaken in Bangladesh India and the Pacific island States of Kiribati and Tuvalu it evaluates whether the phenomenon of climate change induced displacement is an empirically sound category for academic inquiry It does so by examining the reasons why people move or choose not to move the extent to which climate change as opposed to underlying socio economic factors provides a trigger for such movement and whether traditional international responses such as the conclusion of new treaties and the creation of new institutions are appropriate solutions in this context In this way the book queries whether flight from habitat destruction should be viewed as another facet of traditional international protection or as a new challenge requiring more creative legal and policy responses law and the international law on statelessness Drawing on Cultural Identity and Ethnicity in the Pacific Jocelyn Linnekin, Lin Poyer, 1990-01-01 People on the Move in a Changing Climate Etienne Piguet, Frank Laczko, 2013-10-17 Policymakers around the world are increasingly concerned about the likely impact of climate change and environmental degradation on the movement of people This book takes a hard look at the existing evidence available to policymakers in different regions of the world How much do we really know about the impact of environmental change on migration How will different regions of the world be affected in the future Is there evidence to show that migration can help countries adapt to environmental change What types of research have been conducted how reliable is the evidence These are some of the questions considered in this book which presents for the first time a synthesis of relevant research findings for each major region of the world Written by regional experts the book provides a comprehensive overview of the key findings of existing studies on the linkages between environmental change and the movement of people More and more reports on migration and the environment are being published but the information is often scattered between countries and within regions and it is not always clear how much of this information is based on solid research This book brings this evidence together for the first time highlighting innovative studies and research gaps In doing this the book seeks to help decision makers draw lessons from existing studies and to identify priorities for further research

Climate Change and Tradition in a Small Island State Peter Rudiak-Gould, 2013-07-18 The citizens of the Marshall Islands have been told that climate change will doom their country and they have seen confirmatory omens in the land air and sea This book investigates how grassroots Marshallese society has interpreted and responded to this threat as intimated by local observation science communication and Biblical exegesis With grounds to dismiss or ignore the threat Marshall Islanders have instead embraced it with reasons to forswear guilt and responsibility they have instead adopted in group blame and having been instructed that resettlement is necessary they have vowed instead to retain the homeland These dominant local responses can be understood as arising from a pre existing vigorous constellation of Marshallese ideas termed modernity the trickster a historically inspired narrative of self inflicted cultural decline and seduction by Euro American modernity This study illuminates islander agency at the intersection of the local and the global and suggests a theory of risk perception based on ideological commitment to narratives of historical progress and decline

Bountiful Island David Damas, 2006-01-01 In Bountiful Island a major Arctic scholar turns his eye on Micronesia the small and isolated atoll of Pingelap in Micronesia lies in a moist climatic belt which encourages abundant plant life including such food plants as coconuts breadfruit and taro In this detailed examination of land tenure practices in the atoll David Damas argues that the resulting high level of subsistence has brought an expansion of the population which has put great pressures on land Under these pressures land tenure has moved from communal usage to lineage control to individual ownership and transmission rights Comparative material from neighbouring Mwaekil atoll indicates the same general succession from larger to smaller units of tenure with increasing population While control of land by kin groups is usual in the Pacific other atoll societies show examples of individual tenure which also relate to changes in population densities Subsequent depopulation and emigration have not altered the fundamentals of the land tenure system but have led to the emergence of a pattern of land stewardship This has resulted in imbalances between the holdings of resident cultivators and those of absentee landowners Comparative material from neighbouring Mwaekil atoll indicates the same general succession from larger to smaller units of tenure with increasing population While control of land by kin groups is usual in the Pacific other atoll societies show examples of individual tenure which also relate to changes in population densities Bountiful Island will be of interest to all anthropologists studying cross cultural comparisons in the theory of land tenure practices and the ethnology social anthropology and ethnohistory of Micronesia This book is also suitable for senior undergraduate and graduate courses in cultural ecology and
