Sweet Anticipation David Huron, 2008-01-25 The psychological theory of expectation that David Huron proposes in Sweet Anticipation grew out of the author's experimental efforts to understand how music evokes emotions These efforts evolved into a general theory of expectation that will prove informative to readers interested in cognitive science and evolutionary psychology as well as those interested in music The book describes a set of psychological mechanisms and illustrates how these mechanisms work in the case of music All examples of notated music can be heard on the Web Huron proposes that emotions evoked by expectation involve five functionally distinct response systems reaction responses which engage defensive reflexes tension responses where uncertainty leads to stress prediction responses which reward accurate prediction imagination responses which facilitate deferred gratification and appraisal responses which occur after conscious thought is engaged For real world events these five response systems typically produce a complex mixture of feelings The book identifies some of the aesthetic possibilities afforded by expectation and shows how common musical devices such as syncopation cadence meter tonality and climax exploit the psychological opportunities The theory also provides new insights into the physiological psychology of awe laughter and spine tingling chills Huron traces the psychology of expectations from the patterns of the physical cultural world through imperfectly learned heuristics used to predict that world to the phenomenal qualia we experienced as we apprehend the world

The Intertwining of Aesthetics and Ethics Jadranka Skorin-Kapov, 2016-04-21 The Intertwining of Aesthetics and Ethics Exceeding of Expectations Ecstasy Sublimity analyzes the common experiential ground for both aesthetics and ethics by considering experiential environment both nature and art the precedents to desire the notion of experience incorporating a break and the reverberations of surprise leading to the intertwining of aesthetics and ethics Jadranka Skorin Kapov discusses different philosophical positions on the relationship between nature and art in conversation with Kant Hegel Goethe Gadamer and Adorno She argues that Kantian sublimity can carry over from nature to art As part of the discussions of expectations and authenticity the author interprets Husserl's view on expectations Heidegger's view on death and authenticity Blanchot's view on death and Arendt's view on natality As for understanding the aesthetic experience as the paradigmatic experience Skorin Kapov is informed by Dewey's work on art as experience Gadamer's work on experience of art and Jauss's work on the aesthetics of reception and the horizon of expectations After our sensibility and representational capability are broken recuperation then leads to sublimity and the subsequent feelings of admiration and responsibility allowing for the intertwining of aesthetics and ethics Additionally elements of Kantian morality Foucault's ethics and Kierkegaard's work on interactions between aesthetics and ethics together help to characterize the relation between aesthetics and ethics Since we often encounter surprise due to unexpectedness in comedy Skorin Kapov also interprets philosophical views on the comedy and laughter including Aristotle Kierkegaard Meredith and Bergson using the theatrical work of Dario Fo as an example The novel analysis in The Intertwining of Aesthetics and Ethics will be of particular interest to students and scholars working or teaching in aesthetics phenomenology art history cultural studies and ethics

The Anthropology of the Future Rebecca Bryant, Daniel M. Knight, 2019-03-28 Study of the future is an important new field in anthropology Building on a philosophical tradition running from Aristotle through Heidegger to Schatzki this book presents the concept of orientations as a way to study everyday life It analyses six main orientations anticipation expectation speculation potentiality hope and destiny which represent different ways in which the future may affect our present While orientations entail planning towards and imagining the future they also often involve the collapse or exhaustion of those efforts moments where hope may turn to apathy frustrated planning to disillusion and imagination to fatigue By examining these orientations at different points the authors argue for an anthropology that takes fuller account of the teleologies of action

Placebo and Pain Anthony Jones, Christopher Brown, Wael El-Deredy, 2013-08-28 Placebo analgesia has been attributed to the effects of expectations of pain reduction which are generally thought of as conscious cognitive processes and classical conditioning which is a learning process that need not be conscious We propose a model of placebo analgesia that also takes into account anxiety as a possible mediator of some of the effects of expectations on pain and attentional processes as a moderator of expectancy effects In this review we will focus on evidence to support this model from electroencephalography EEG studies Because of the high temporal resolution of EEG it provides an appropriate imaging modality to interrogate some of the key components of our proposed model for placebo analgesia In this chapter we review the contribution that EEG studies have made to our understanding of anticipation of pain and the role anticipation may have in priming pain perception and determining placebo analgesic responses
