We are calling on you to support this campaign and help give people with dementia, and their carers, the recognition and support they deserve.

IN DEMENTIA

FRONT OF MIND

Across the UK, people living with dementia and their carers are facing unfair and unacceptable challenges in accessing the support and care they need – an issue exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic. This not only has significant personal cost, but is damaging to the NHS, economy, and wider society.

Dementia is already the leading cause of death in the UK, and in contrast to other chronic conditions – such as heart disease and respiratory disease – continues to see increasing mortality rates.² This will only rise further as the number of people living with dementia in the UK is projected to increase by 146% by 2050, from 850,000 to two million.³

Without action to better recognise and meet the needs of people living with dementia – and the 700,000 family and friends who already provide unpaid care to them – the UK stands wholly unprepared to meet the growing demand that this will place on the NHS, social care, and society as a whole.

Seeing the scale of this challenge, Roche and tide – together in dementia everyday – are raising awareness of the issues faced by people with dementia and their carers, and are calling for action to be taken to provide the recognition and support they need.

WHAT CHALLENGES DO PEOPLE LIVING WITH DEMENTIA EXPERIENCE?

Currently, 1 in every 14 of those aged 65 years and over is living with dementia⁶ – the most common cause of which is Alzheimer's disease, affecting over 520,000 people in the UK.⁶ But, despite this significant – and accelerating – number, many people with dementia are struggling to access basic care and support.

NICE guidelines state that those with dementia should have access to a timely and accurate diagnosis, to enable them to access treatment quickly and plan for the future.⁷ In reality, this remains out of reach for many people with suspected dementia symptoms:

- On average, it takes 2 years from first signs of symptoms before a patient seeks advice from their GP, before a further 6 to 12 weeks to be referred to a specialist⁸
- Although the majority of people are referred to memory assessment services (MAS), even prior to the pandemic, there was wide variation in access to these services – with some patients waiting as long as 34 weeks⁹
