

Economics – Paul Krugman

Chapter 1: First Principles

What are the four economic principles that underlie the economics of individual choice?

1. Choices are necessary because resources are scarce
 - a. Income, time
 - b. Choosing something also means not choosing something else
 - c. What is a resource?
 - i. Anything that can be used to produce something else (land, labor, capital, human capital etc)
2. The true cost of something is its opportunity cost
 - a. What is an opportunity cost?
 - i. What you must give up in order to get something else
3. “How much” is a decision at the margin
 - a. The decision of how much of two things involves a trade-off – a comparison of costs and benefits
4. People respond to incentives, exploiting opportunities to make themselves better off
 - a. Example of the man who put his car in as a collateral when borrowing money from a bank -> only had to pay interest of the loan when he was away on holiday instead of paying the parking cost which would've been substantially more

What are the four principles underlying the economics of interaction?

1. There are gains from trade
 - a. Gains from trade arise from division of tasks – which economists call specialization
2. Markets move toward equilibrium (because people respond to incentives)
 - a. A situation in which individuals cannot make themselves better off by doing something different – the situation in which all the checkout lines are the same length – is what economists call an equilibrium
3. Resources should be used efficiently to achieve society's goals
 - a. An economy's resources are used efficiently when they are used in a way that has fully exploited all opportunities to make everyone better off
 - b. Equity over efficiency? Disabled parking spots etc.
4. Markets usually lead to efficiency, but when they don't, government intervention can improve society's welfare
 - a. Because people exploit gains from trade, markets usually lead to efficiency

What are the three principles for macroeconomy cycles/big picture of the economy?

1. One person's spending is another person's income
2. Overall spending sometimes gets out of line with the economy's productive capacity; when it does, government policy can change spending
3. Increases in the economy's potential lead to economic growth over time
