Future Facts:

Future Facts Stephen Rosen, 1977-03-15 God and Time Gregory E. Ganssle, David M. Woodruff, 2002 This is a collection of previously unpublished essays written by leading philosophers about God's relation to time. The essays have been selected to represent current debates between those who believe God to be atemporal and those who do not. The Meaning of the Market Process Israel M. Kirzner, 2002-09-11 Israel Kirzner is the foremost proponent of the modern Austrian theory of the market process. This book offers substantive insights in support of this theory and a new historical interpretation of how the ideas of modern Austrians emerged. The Burden of Proof in Comparative and International Human Rights Law Juliane Kokott, 2023-12-28 This book explores how courts decide or ought to decide in situations of uncertainty. A court must always decide the case before it even if the relevant facts remain unclear. The question then arises which party benefits and which party is burdened by that uncertainty. In these cases the court must apply the rules on the burden of proof or more precisely the burden of persuasion. Their importance for the individual claimant is obvious. The comparison of two domestic systems, one based on common law and the other a traditional code-based legal order with regard to the issue of burden of proof, helps to clarify the terminology and lays the ground for dealing with the burden of proof in international human rights law. Without knowing what can be understood by the term burden of proof under domestic law, international lawyers with different domestic law backgrounds are in danger of misunderstanding each other. This may lead to obscuring the problems connected with court decisions involving uncertainty. The study also deals with uncertainties with regard to legislative general in contrast to adjudicative individual facts and with uncertainties in the framework of predictions in contrast to uncertainties relating to historic facts. It attempts to prepare the ground for dealing more consciously and more consistently with problems of uncertainty in international human rights law. International courts, due to their geographical and cultural distance from the case, usually have less access to the underlying facts. Nevertheless, in order to protect human rights effectively, international courts and tribunals cannot always restrict themselves to reviewing the law but may also have to decide on the facts. Thus, issues relating to decision making on the basis of uncertain facts, including the burden of persuasion, are even more important in international than in domestic human rights law. Time and cross-temporal relations Giuliano Torrenco, 2015-03-11T00:00:00+01:00 According to both ordinary and scientific thought, two objects can enter into relation not only simultaneously but also at different times, namely cross-temporally. For instance, we understand comparisons between entities as they are at different times, such as when we say that John is now taller than Michael was three years ago. Causally related events are often not simultaneous, and objects of perceptions and perceivers usually have different temporal locations. We see ordinary things as they were a few milliseconds ago; we see the sun as it was eight minutes ago, and so on. However, many philosophers consider cross-temporality deceptive. Relations, according to the standard view, can hold only between things existing in the same time. In this book, Torrenco defends the opposite view.

according to which relations can be cross temporally instantiated and thus cross temporal talk must be taken seriously The theory is based on the idea that persisting in time is tantamount to possessing temporal parts at different times and its central tenet is that persisting entities objects and events alike are cross temporally related by having distinct temporal parts entering into relations
