Health Care Financing in Mainland Tanzania Manuel Gottlieb,1975 Task Force on Financing Health Care for the Poor Greater Detroit Area Health Council. Task Force on Financing Health Care for the Poor,1985 Serious and Unstable Condition Henry J. Aaron,2010-12-01 The United States spends more on health care than any other nation in the world yet millions of Americans cannot afford basic care for acute illnesses few are insured against the costs of long term care and many frequently used medical procedures have never been fully evaluated The goals of controlling spiraling health care costs and extending insurance coverage or even maintaining current insurance coverage seem to be in conflict But progress can be made on both goals if they are tacked together Henry Aaron evaluates these critical issues and explores how adequate care can be provided without fueling inflation Because the current arrangements for financing America s health care cannot endure Aaron contends that a major national debate on the restructuring of the U

A system of financing health care is inescapable and major legislation is likely. Serious and Unstable Condition offers a guide that is crucial to understanding the reform debate. It explains the important economic issues of health care as a background for evaluating both the current system and proposals for change. Aaron compares the U.S. system of health care financing with certain foreign systems and reviews major options for reform. He cautions that unless the health insurance system is radically changed, the number of uninsured will continue to increase and costs will continue to escalate. He then offers his own comprehensive plan to address these problems.

Theory and Practice of Managed Competition in Health Care

Finance A.C. Enthoven, 2014-04-23 These lectures review the research and experience on the subject of health care economy. The author also sets down a moderately rigorous statement of the economic concepts underlying the kind of competition that he regards as the most promising way to achieve a reasonable degree of equity and efficiency in health care. The first lecture is on the public policy goals of health care financing and delivery and discusses efficiency in health care. The second presents an economic analysis of the systems for organizing and financing medical care systems in the United States. The third lecture is about managed competition and the fourth reviews American experience with efforts to convert from the traditional system to a competitive system. The book is addressed primarily to economists, health policy makers and health services researchers. It explains how market forces may be managed in pursuit of equity and efficiency in health care. It addresses systematically many of the causes of market failure and proposes a strategy of managed competition for overcoming them. It should be of interest to policy makers in any country interested in incentives for more efficient health care delivery. It should also be very useful supplemental reading for courses in health care economics.

Financing Health Services in Developing

Countries John S. Akin, Nancy Birdsall, David M. De Ferranti, 1987-01-01 This report discusses several different approaches that support reforming health care services in developing countries. For some time now health care services have been supported by government funds. As demands for improving health care services continue to increase, additional demands will be placed on governments to respond. This, however, will not be easy. Slow economic growth and record budget deficits in the 1980s have forced reductions in public spending. Alternative approaches to finance health care services are needed. Such possible changes could involve decentralization of federal government involvement, the promotion of nongovernment involvement, the imposition of user fees, and establishing health insurance. Finally, the role of the Bank in pursuing new financing strategies is discussed.
