Ecological Forest Management Jerry F. Franklin, K. Norman Johnson, Debora L. Johnson, 2018-03-19

Fundamental changes have occurred in all aspects of forestry over the last 50 years, including the underlying science, societal expectations of forests and their management, and the evolution of a globalized economy. This textbook is an effort to comprehensively integrate this new knowledge of forest ecosystems and human concerns and needs into a management philosophy that is applicable to the vast majority of global forest lands. Ecological forest management (EFM) is focused on policies and practices that maintain the integrity of forest ecosystems while achieving environmental, economic, and cultural goals of human societies. EFM uses natural ecological models as its basis, contrasting it with modern production forestry which is based on agronomic models and constrained by required return on investment. Sections of the book consider:

1. Basic concepts related to forest ecosystems and silviculture based on natural models.
2. Social and political foundations of forestry, including law, economics, and social acceptability.
3. Important current topics including wildfire, biological diversity, and climate change.
4. Forest planning in an uncertain world, from small privately owned lands to large public ownerships.

The book concludes with an overview of how EFM can contribute to resolving major 21st-century issues in forestry, including sustaining forest dependent societies

Our Forest, Your Ecosystem, Their Timber Nicholas K. Menzies, 2007 Community based forest management CBFM is a model of forest management in which a community takes part in decision making and implementation and monitoring of activities affecting the natural resources around them CBFM provides a framework for a community members to secure access to the products and services that flow from the landscape in which they live and has become an essential component of any comprehensive approach to forest management In this volume Nicholas K Menzies looks at communities in China Zanzibar Brazil and India where despite differences in landscape climate politics and culture common challenges and themes arise in making a transition from forest management by government agencies to CBFM The stories of these four distinct places highlight the difficulties communities face when trying to manage their forests and negotiate partnerships with others interested in forest management such as the commercial forest sector or conservation and environmental organizations These issues are then considered against a growing body of research concerning what constitutes successful CBFM Drawing on published and unpublished case studies project reports and his own rich experience Menzies analyzes how CBFM fits into the broader picture of the management of natural resources highlighting the conditions that bring about effective practices and the most just and equitable stewardship of resources A critical companion for students researchers and practitioners Our Forest Your Ecosystem Their Timber provides a singular resource on the emergence and evolution of CBFM
