Environmental Control Systems:

The Architectural Expression of Environmental Control Systems George Baird,2003-09-02 The Architectural Expression of Environmental Control Systems examines the way project teams can approach the design and expression of both active and passive environmental control systems in a more creative way Using seminal case studies from around the world and interviews with the architects and environmental engineers involved the book illustrates innovative responses to client site and user requirements focusing upon elegant design solutions to a perennial problem This book will inspire architects building scientists and building services engineers to take a more creative approach to the design and expression of environmental control systems whether active or passive whether they influence overall building form or design detail

Environmental Control Systems Terminology AC-9 Aircraft Environmental Systems Committee,2017 This ARP provides the definition of terms commonly used in aircraft environmental control system ECS design and analysis Many of the terms may be used as guidelines for establishing standard ECS nomenclature Some general thermodynamic terms are included that are frequently used in ECS analysis but this document is not meant to be an inclusive list of such terms ARP147E has been reaffirmed to comply with the SAE Five Year Review policy

Selected Environmental Control Systems for Insulated Modular Structures Donald R. Cumberland,1994 Aircraft environmental control systems IMechE Aerospace Division,1997 The Architectural Expression of Environmental Control Systems George Baird,2003-09-02 Examines the ways design teams can take a more creative approach to the design and expression of both active and passive environmental control systems Case Studies from around the world including many award winning buildings

Environmental Control Systems for Helicopters AC-9 Aircraft Environmental Systems Committee,2014 This ARP discusses design philosophy system and equipment requirements environmental conditions and design considerations for helicopter environmental control systems ECS The helicopter ECS comprises that arrangement of equipment controls and indicators which supply and distribute dehumidified conditioned air for ventilation cooling and heating of the occupied compartments and cooling of the avionics The principal features of the system are aA controlled fresh air supply bA means for cooling air or vapor cycle units and heat exchangers cA means for removing excess moisture from the air supply dA means for heating eA temperature control system fA conditioned air distribution systemThe ARP is applicable to both civil and military helicopters where an ECS is specified however certain requirements peculiar to military applications such as nuclear biological and chemical NBC protection are not covered The integration of NBC protection into aircraft ECS is discussed in AIR4362 ARP292C has been reaffirmed to comply with the SAE five year review policy ENVIRONMENTAL CONTROL SYSTEM CONTAMINATION AC-9 Aircraft Environmental Systems Committee,1981 This publication will be limited to a discussion of liquid and particulate contaminants which enter the aircraft through the environmental control system ECS Gaseous contaminants such as ozone fuel vapors sulphates etc are not covered in this AIR It will cover all contamination sources which interface with ECS and the effects of this contamination on equipment Methods of control will be limited to the equipment and interfacing ducting which normally falls within the responsibility of the ECS designer

Assistive Technology from Adapted Equipment to Inclusive Environments Laura Burzagli, Andrea Como, Anna-Liisa Salminen, 2009-08-15 The concept of Assistive Technology is moving away from adopting the most appropriate devices to overcome the limitations of users to the designing and setting up of total environments in which people can live supported by suitable services and additional support devices integrated within the environment These two perspectives are deeply intertwined both from technological and social points of view and the relationship between them currently represent the primary challenge for the field of Assistive Technology This publication covers the proceedings of the 10th European Conference of the Association for the Advancement of Assistive Technology in Europe <http://www.aaate.net> the organisation which stimulates the advancement of assistive technology for the benefit of people with disabilities including elderly people This conference seeks to bridge the gap between these two complementary approaches providing an opportunity to clarify differences and common points and better define future direction Topics covered by the conference include technological innovation in assistive technology the need for multidisciplinary approaches equipment interconnectivity and compatibility cultural aspects and the acceptance of different approaches and the role of Europe in building inclusion competence worldwide Disability results not only from a person's intrinsic attributes but also from the context in which they live This publication is a significant contribution to the advancement of inclusion for people living with a disability everywhere

Environmental Control Systems Chalmers G. Long, 1973 Environmental Control Systems Fuller Moore, 1992-12-01 Integration and Optimization of Space Vehicle Environmental Control Systems R. A. Paselk, 1963 Providing optimum systems for any aerospace vehicle confronts all system engineers Better methods for arriving at system selection rapidly and economically with a greater confidence of operational suitability are greatly needed As such problems associated with the synthesis of optimal environmental control systems were explored and preliminary methods were developed and applied to an atmospheric control circuit Supporting analytical studies were made of heat and mass transfer and chemical processes as a basis for development of synthesis and optimization technology Emphasis was placed on improving systems design and selection capability during vehical preliminary design system and subsystem design Process description and transformation to characteristics which show direct influence of requirements vehical data system variables process selection and reliability were invwestigated for some atmospheric control circuits Further investigations are currently being pursued to continue the systhesis of optimal environmental control systems for aerospace vehicles started in this study
