Ghada Amer: Painting in Revolt, 2022-02-22 The gender politics of abstraction embroidered paintings and more from Ghada Amer New York based painter and embroiderer Ghada Amer born 1963 was raised in Cairo Egypt and later educated in Nice and Paris France Her experiences with sexism in both locations served as the impetus for her to forge new ground in a range of mediums from painting and sculpture to ceramics and earthworks With a background in abstract painting Amer eventually turned to embroidery as a strategy for infiltrating the male space of painting with a material traditionally associated with women Her work is frequently based on the images of female figures found in magazines through which she explores the constructions of gender sexuality and eroticism Her embroidery is intentionally loose with threads dangling from the canvas provoking a pictorial effect not unlike Pollock's splattered paint More recent works introduce a verbal element with quotations and aphorisms This volume reproduces these pieces along with a selection of works from across her career

Transorientalism in Art, Fashion, and Film Adam Geczy, 2019-01-10 Combining transnationalism and exoticism transorientalism is the new orientalism of the age of globalization With its roots in earlier times it is a term that emphasizes alteration mutation and exchange between cultures While the familiar orientalisms persist transorientalism is a term that covers notions like the adoption of a hat from a different country for Turkish nationalist dress the fact that an Italian could be one of the most influential directors in recent Chinese cinema that Muslim women artists explore Islamic womanhood in non-Islamic countries that artists can embrace both indigenous and non-indigenous identity at the same time This is more than nostalgia or bland nationalism It is a reflection of the effect that communication and representation in recent decades have
