Good Death:

The Good Death Ann Neumann, 2017-02-07 Following the death of her father journalist and hospice volunteer Ann Neumann sets out to examine what it means to die well in the United States When Ann Neumann's father was diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma she left her job and moved back to her hometown of Lancaster Pennsylvania She became his full-time caregiver cooking cleaning and administering medications When her father died she was undone by the experience by grief and the visceral quality of dying Neumann struggled to put her life back in order and found herself haunted by a question Was her father's death a good death The way we talk about dying and the way we actually die are two very different things she discovered and many of us are shielded from what death actually looks like To gain a better understanding Neumann became a hospice volunteer and set out to discover what a good death is today She attended conferences academic lectures and grief sessions in church basements She went to Montana to talk with the attorney who successfully argued for the legalization of aid in dying and to Scranton Pennsylvania to listen to pro-life groups who believe the removal of feeding tubes from some patients is tantamount to murder Above all she listened to the stories of those who were close to death What Neumann found is that death in contemporary America is much more complicated than we think Medical technologies and increased life expectancies have changed the very definition of medical death And although death is our common fate it is also a divisive issue that we all experience differently What constitutes a good death is unique to each of us depending on our age race economic status culture and beliefs What's more differing concepts of choice autonomy and consent make death a contested landscape governed by social medical legal and religious systems In these pages Neumann brings us intimate portraits of the nurses patients bishops bioethicists and activists who are shaping the way we die The Good Death presents a fearless examination of how we approach death and how those of us close to dying loved ones live in death's wake

A Good Death Sandra Martin, 2016-04-12 Having a good death is our final human right argues Sandra Martin in this updated and expanded version of her bestselling and award-winning social history of the right to die movement in Canada and around the world Winner of the BC National Award for Canadian Non-Fiction finalist for both the Donner Prize in Public Policy and the Dafoe Prize for History A Good Death has a new chapter on Canada's Medical Assistance in Dying Law The law allows mentally competent adults who are suffering grievously from incurable conditions to ask for a doctor's help in ending their lives Does the law go far enough No says Martin She delivers compelling stories about the patients the law ignores people with life-crushing diseases who are condemned to suffer because their natural deaths are not reasonably foreseeable With a clear analytical eye she exposes the law's shortcomings and outlines constitutional challenges including the presumed right of publicly funded faith-based institutions to deny suffering patients a legal medical service Martin argues that Canada can set an example for the world if it can strike a balance between compassion for the suffering and protection of the vulnerable between individual choice and social responsibility A Good Death asks the tough question none of us can avoid How do you

A Good Death Margaret Rice, 2019-05-06 The guide to facilitate much needed conversation and provide resources for grief management and palliative care When her own mother died Margaret Rice realised how completely unprepared she and her family had been for the experience of companioning a loved one who is dying So she decided to go in search of the information she couldn't find when she most needed it and write the book herself a novice's guide to death We live in a period of intense death denial But what if we were to smash that taboo and ask questions we want answered like how do we know when someone is close to dying and how do we best care for them What actually happens to our body when we die How do we work with medical experts How do we deal with the non medical issues that will come up such as wills finances and even social media passwords Is morphine used to nudge death along or is this just a myth Where do questions about euthanasia fit in with personal lived experience Margaret Rice lifts the lid on the taboos that surround death sharing practical information and compassionate advice from multiple sources to break down boundaries and offer better choices of care to suit individual needs This is a book to help the dying and their carers feel less isolated and help us all face death better

EBOOK: A Good Death: On the Value of Death and Dying Lars Sandman, 2004-09-16 Is there such a thing as a good death Should we be able to choose how we wish to die What are the ethical considerations that surround a good death The notion of a good death plays an important role in modern palliative care and remains a topic for lively debate Using philosophical methods and theories this book provides a critical analysis of Western notions surrounding the dying process in the palliative care context Sandman highlights how our changing ideas about the value of life inevitably shape the concept of a good death He explores the varying perspectives on the good death that come from friends family physicians spiritual carers and others close to the dying person Setting out a number of arguments for and against existing thinking about a good death this book links to the practice of palliative care in several key areas including An exploration of the universal features of dying The process of facing death Preparation for death The environment of dying and death The author concludes that it is difficult to find convincing reasons for any one way to die a good death and argues for a pluralist approach A Good Death is essential reading for students and professionals with an interest in palliative care and end of life issues
