Global Media, Culture, and Identity Rohit

Chopra, Radhika Gajjala, 2012-10-02 This edited volume examines the ways that global media shapes relations between place, culture and identity. Through the included essays, Chopra and Gajjala offer a mix of theoretical reflections and empirical case studies that will help readers understand how the media can shape cultural identities and conversely how cultural formations can influence the political economy of global media. The interdisciplinary international scholars gathered here push the discussion of what it means to do global media studies beyond uncritical celebrations of the global media technologies or globalization as well as beyond perspectives that are a priori dismissive of the possibilities of global media. Some of the key questions and themes that the international contributors explore within the text include: Is the global audience of global television the same as the global audience of the internet? Can we conceptualize the global culture media identity dynamic beyond the discourse of postcolonialism? How does the globalization of media affect feelings of nationalism? How is the growth of a consumer global middle class spread and resisted through media? Global Media Identity and Culture takes a comparative media approach to addressing these and other issues across media forms including print, television, film and new media.

Studebaker, 2010-09-20 In little over a century the Pentecostal movement has emerged from small bands of revival seekers to become one of the largest Christian groups in the world. Primarily a movement within Western Christianity for much of its brief history it is increasingly characterized as a global movement. Pentecostal theology and ministry in a Western context must engage global Pentecostalism and be willing to rethink its traditional patterns of thought and practice in light of the evolving nature of the movement The essays in this book come mainly from the McMaster Divinity College 2008 Pentecostal Forum The Many Faces of Pentecostalism Pentecostalism and Globalization The first section outlines the nature of globalization and establishes it as the context for contemporary Pentecostal theology and ministry The other contributions explore the impact of globalization on traditional areas of Pentecostal theology such as Spirit baptism and speaking in tongues and twenty first century Pentecostal ministry
