Group Model Building Facilitating Team Learning Using System Dynamics:

Group Model Building Jac A. M. Vennix, 1996-08-16 This book is about increasing team performance It focuses on building system dynamics models when tackling a mix of interrelated strategic problems to enhance team learning foster consensus and create commitment The book is intended to be applied in the organizations of today As the command and control organization evolves into one of decision making teams so these teams have become the critical building blocks upon which the performance of the organization depends The team members face an increased complexity of decision making with the interrelation of several strategic problems What this means is that people have different views of the situation and will define problems differently However research shows that this can in fact be very productive if and when people learn from each other in order to build a shared perspective Learning in this way might prove to be the only sustainable competitive advantage for organizations in the future As a result team leaders want to create learning teams and are confronted with issues such as how to create a situation where people doubt their ideas rather than stubbornly cling to dearly held views create a learning atmosphere rather than trying to win the discussion create a shared understanding of a problem in a team foster consensus and create commitment with a strategic decision facilitate Group Model Building Those who will benefit most from Group Model Building Facilitating Team Learning Using System Dynamics are those who are familiar with systems thinking or organizational learning or those who are working in groups and are coming up against the common difficulties

Group Model Building Rodney Scott, 2018-06-12 This book describes the cognitive and interpersonal effects of group model building and presents empirical research on what group model building achieves and how Further it proposes an integrated causal mechanism for the effects on participants There have been multiple previous attempts at explaining the effects of group model building on participants and this book integrates these various theories for the first time The causal mechanisms described here suggest a variety of design elements that should be included in group model building practice For example practitioners typically try to reduce complexity for clients to make the process feel more accessible In contrast the findings presented here suggest that the very act of muddling through complexity increases participants affective commitment to the group and the decisions made The book also describes implications for theory and practice System dynamics has traditionally been interested in using technical modeling processes to make policy recommendations Group model building demonstrates that these same techniques also have implications for group decision making as a method for negotiating agreement The book argues for the value of group model building as a mediating or negotiating tool rather than merely a positivist tool for technical problems

Agent-Based Modeling of Environmental Conflict and Cooperation Todd BenDor, Jürgen Scheffran, 2018-10-12 Conflict is a major facet of many environmental challenges of our time However growing conflict complexity makes it more difficult to identify win win strategies for sustainable conflict resolution Innovative methods are needed to help predict understand and resolve conflicts in cooperative ways Agent Based Modeling of Environmental Conflict and Cooperation examines computer modeling techniques as an important set of tools for assessing environmental and resource based conflicts and ultimately for finding pathways to conflict resolution and cooperation This book has two major goals First it argues that complexity science can be a unifying framework for professions engaged in conflict studies and resolution including anthropology law management peace studies urban planning and geography Second this book presents an innovative framework for approaching conflicts as complex adaptive systems by using many forms of environmental analysis including system dynamics modeling agent based modeling evolutionary game theory viability theory and network analysis Known as VIABLE Values and Investments from Agent Based interaction and Learning in Environmental systems this framework allows users to model advanced facets of conflicts including institution building coalition formation adaptive learning and the potential for future conflict and conflict resolution based on the long term viability of the actors strategies Written for scholars students practitioners and policy makers alike this book offers readers an extensive introduction to environmental conflict research and resolution techniques As the result of decades of research the text presents a strong argument for conflict modeling and reviews the most popular and advanced techniques including system dynamics modeling agent based modeling and participatory modeling methods This indispensable guide uses NetLogo a widely used and free modeling software package to implement the VIABLE modeling approach in three case study applications around the world Readers are invited to explore adapt modify and expand these models to conflicts they hope to better understand and resolve
