The Fact Book Francis Rolt-Wheeler, 1911 The Justice Motive in Social Behavior Melvin J. Lerner, Sally C. Lerner, 2013-11-11 This volume was conceived out of the concern with what the imminent future holds for the have countries those societies such as the United States which are based on complex technology and a high level of energy consumption Even the most sanguine projection includes as base minimum relatively rapid and radical change in all aspects of the society reflecting adaptation or reactions to demands created by potential threat to the technological base sources of energy to the life support system itself Whatever the source of these threats whether they are the result of politically endogenous or exogenous forces they will elicit changes in our social institutions changes resulting not only from attempts to adapt but also from unintended consequences of failures to adapt One reasonable assumption is that whatever the future holds for us we would prefer to live in a world of minimal suffering with the greatest opportunity for fulfilling the human potential The question then becomes one of how we can provide for these goals in that scenario for the imminent future a world of threat change need to adapt diminishing access to that which has been familiar comfortable needed Housing and Planning

References, 1981 Entitlement and the Affectional Bond Melvin J. Lerner, Gerold Mikula, 2013-06-29 If the truth were told this volume and its direct antecedents must rank among the most ambitious if not simply pretentious endeavors imaginable at least in the social sciences The titles of the volume and the chapters promising to integrate the experiences of the sense of justice and the affectional bonding of people in close relations seem straightforward and reasonable enough What they fail to convey however is the simple bald fact that we in the human social sciences have no firm grasp on either of these two fundamental experiences what we sometimes call love and justice To begin with even as scientists committed to understanding based upon systematic propositions linking publicly observable concepts we have no clear consensus concerning the nature of the affectional bonds linking people in close relationships love intimacy caring mutual responsiveness or the sense of justice fairness deserving and in our efforts to understand entitlement And we are continually handicapped stand these complex moving experiences by the persistent tendency to reduce them to manifestations of nothing but familiar psychological or even biological processes secondary rewards selfish genes So why then this volume Although there are many answers to the question probably the most germane is that the basic issues are so important and intriguing that the recent past has seen rather dramatic parallel growth in social scientists interest in these two areas justice and close relationships
